THE GUITEAU TRIAL.

Judge Cox's Charge to the Jury.

IN THE COURT ROOM AT THE JURY'S RETURN.

Comments on the Trial—How Guiteau and the People Generally Received the News of his Conviction.

SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—[illegible] address concluded thus: "Gentlemen, [illegible] come which I [illegible]. The government has presented its case before you, and we have tried to discharge our duty to the best of our ability. His honor has endeavored to discharge his. [illegible] be faithful to your oaths and discharge it that by your action an [illegible] assassination shall find no sanction [illegible] a precedent hereafter. He, who ordained [illegible] life shall be shielded by human law [illegible] crime, presides over your deliberations [illegible] the verdict which shall be given or withheld will be ordered where we all have to [illegible] your verdict will be prompt, that [illegible] the majesty of law, your integrity, [illegible] of the country, and that this trial, [illegible] deeply interested all nations of the [illegible] result in a warning, to reach all lands; [illegible] murder shall not be used as a means [illegible] party or political revolutions. I [illegible] the time shall come in consequence [illegible] that shall be called to the consideration out of this trial, when by international agreement between the various governments shall be so strengthened that political [illegible] shall find no refuge on the face of the [illegible]."

[illegible] had closed, Judge Cox rose and began to the jury. After reviewing the [illegible] of the testimony he said:

[illegible] further, he wished to notice an [illegible] had taken place pending the recent [illegible] prisoner had frequently taken occasion to [illegible] public opinion as evidenced by the press [illegible] evidence was in his favor. These declarations [illegible] be prevented, except by the process [illegible] the prisoner. Any suggestions that the [illegible] influenced by such lawless clattering of [illegible] would have seemed to him absurd, and [illegible] he felt that he was insulting the intelligence [illegible] jury if he had warned them not to regard [illegible] counsel for prosecution had felt it a [illegible] however, in final argument, to interpose [illegible] of such statements, and exceptions [illegible] on the part of the accused to the [illegible] which that effort was made, for the [illegible] purging the record of any objectionable [illegible] simply say anything which had [illegible] other side in reference to public expression [illegible] newspaper opinion was not to be regarded by the jury. To establish murder it had to [illegible] that death was caused by the act of [illegible] further that it was caused with malice [illegible] That did not mean, however, that [illegible] had proved any ill will or hatred [illegible] of accused towards the deceased. [illegible] homicide is shown to have been committed [illegible] intent, it was sufficiently proven [illegible] done with malice aforethought, and [illegible] disproved by showing accused had [illegible] ill towards deceased and that he [illegible] other motives. The jury would have to [illegible] defendant was guilty of murder or insane [illegible] to constitute the crime of murder [illegible] must have a reasonably sane mind, [illegible] he must be of sound mind, [illegible] discretion." Any irresponsible or insane [illegible] not commit murder. If he was laboring [illegible] disease of the mental faculties to such [illegible] that he did not know what he was [illegible] it was wrong, then he was wanting [illegible] mind, memory and discretion, that [illegible] the definition of murder. Every defendant [illegible] presumed innocent until the accusation [illegible] established by proof. Notwithstanding [illegible] presumption of innocence it was [illegible] that defendant was presumed to be [illegible] always been so at the time the crime was [illegible] The burden of proof as to insanity was [illegible] The jury was not to infer that the [illegible] insane because he committed an enormous [illegible] The only safe rule was for the jury to [illegible] attention to the one test of criminal responsibility, namely, whether the prisoner possessed [illegible] capacity, at the time the act was committed, to know that it was wrong, or whether deprived of that capacity by [illegible] There was one important distinction the jury must not lose sight of, and they [illegible] how far it was applicable to [illegible] That was the distinction between mental [illegible] obliquity; between mental incapacity [illegible] between right and wrong and moral [illegible] of that distinction. And now, gentlemen, [illegible] all I have said to you, if you find [illegible] evidence that at the time of the commission of the homicide the prisoner was laboring under [illegible] defect of his reason that he was incapable [illegible] knowing what he was doing or of seeing it [illegible] for example, if he were under an insane [illegible] and God had commanded him to do the [illegible] he was not in a responsible condition of [illegible] an object of compassion and should [illegible] If, on the other hand, you find [illegible] under no insane delusion, but had [illegible] of his faculties and had power [illegible] that his act was wrong, and if [illegible] you will be deliberately conceived the [illegible] homicide; then whether his motive [illegible] personal vindictiveness, political animosity, [illegible] avenge supposed political wrongs, [illegible] for notoriety, or if you are unable [illegible] any motive at all, the act is simply murder [illegible] your duty to find a verdict of guilty as [illegible] If the prisoner is not guilty by reason [illegible] it is your duty to say so. You will [illegible] jury room and consider the verdict.

[illegible] delivery of the judge's charge, which [illegible] at 1:30 P. M., there was perfect stillness [illegible] crowded court room, and even the prisoner [illegible] absolutely quiet, with the exception of [illegible] interruptions. The jury immediately [illegible] many spectators left the court [illegible]

[illegible] of Judge Cox, and the jury had [illegible] twenty minutes, a recess was taken [illegible] five o'clock. Many of the audience, [illegible] virtually imprisoned since half past [illegible] morning, availed themselves of the opportunity [illegible] fresh air and a lunch. The prisoner's request had been allowed soon after [illegible] the court room to retire to a little room [illegible] since the trial began as a waiting room. Before leaving the court room [illegible] considerable nervousness, but on getting [illegible] apartments again his usual composure [illegible] soon returned. He sent out for [illegible] with which he treated his attendants, [illegible] chatting familiarly and good naturedly. [illegible] what he thought the jury would do. "I think they will acquit me, or disagree."

[illegible] minutes after recess had been taken [illegible] the bailiff in waiting that they [illegible] their verdict. They were informed [illegible] had been taken and Judge Cox had left [illegible] So they remained in the room unassembled. A rumor that the jury [illegible] quickly spread from one to another [illegible] crowd surged back into the court [illegible] anxiously awaited what all seemed to expect [illegible] of guilty. The musty, antique room [illegible] gas, and a score or more candles which [illegible] upon the desks of judge, counsel [illegible] imparted a weird, fanciful [illegible] aspect to the grim old place. The [illegible] upon the dark background of the [illegible] like flitting spectres to usher in the [illegible] session of those who held in their hands [illegible] a human life. First came the prisoner [illegible] nervous step, and as he seated himself, perhaps for the last time, the light [illegible] candle fell full upon his face, and the [illegible] unusual pallor. Not a tremor of the [illegible] movement of the muscles of his face was [illegible] He threw back his head and fixed his [illegible] the door through which the jury were to [illegible]

[illegible] afterward took his seat, the crier [illegible] and the jury, at 5:35, filed slowly into [illegible] every sound was hushed save the voice [illegible] he propounded to the foreman the [illegible] Clear and distinct came the reply:

[illegible] verdict? Guilty or not guilty?" [illegible] distinctness came the reply, "Guilty [illegible]"

[illegible] shouted the bailiffs. Scoville and [illegible] prosecution were simultaneously upon [illegible] Scoville attempted to address the court, [illegible] attorney shouted. [illegible] have the verdict complete and in [illegible] strength restored, and the clerk again [illegible] jury said. [illegible] guilty as indicted:" so say we [illegible] responded.

[illegible] demonstration of approval followed this, but not so prolonged as the first. [illegible] upon his feet, demanded a poll of the [illegible] was granted, and each juror was called [illegible] in a firm voice promptly responded [illegible] As the last name was called, the prisoner [illegible] "My blood will be upon the heads of [illegible] you forget it." [illegible] addressed the court, saying: "I do not desire to forfeit any rights I [illegible] the law and practice in this district, [illegible] anything I ought to do now to save [illegible] would be indebted to you to grant it."

[illegible] reply assured him he should have [illegible] that the charge should be [illegible] to-morrow and he would be accorded [illegible] allowed by law within which [illegible] exceptions, and that he would also be [illegible] days within which to move an arrest.

[illegible] from the moment Judge Cox began [illegible] charge had dropped completely his [illegible] arrogance, and sat with rigid features [illegible]

[illegible] the jury. I cannot express too many [illegible] I have discharged [illegible]

[illegible] will probably file a motion in arrest of judgment and for a new trial on exceptions. The law [illegible] for a new trial, and it is customary for the [illegible] Should the [illegible] defendant will appeal to [illegible] thirty days. The January general term is [illegible] in session, and the case cannot go there, but will be appealed to the April term. It is the custom to continue the April term until September, taking a recess over July and August, but should it be closed by the latter part of May, then if judgment is affirmed the execution might take place in July.

The jury took two ballots. The first stood eleven for conviction and one blank, given by Heinline who wanted to be assured that Guiteau had said at any time that the notoriety he would gain by killing the president would increase the sale of his book. This was proved to him and the next ballot showed twelve votes of "guilty."

John W. Guiteau by accident was not present when the verdict was rendered. Scoville stood in his usual place to make the customary announcement regarding exceptions, and there was no human being near the assassin at this moment who had any tie with him or any sympathy. He was again hurried out, the judge and jury went out, the spectators followed and in five minutes more the room was empty and the trial of Guiteau was over, having lasted just seven days less than the agony of Garfield. Upon being removed to the van an angry hiss broke out.

"No, no, gentlemen," cried Deputy Marshal Williams, holding up his hand in expostulation. "No, none of that. It's all over now."

This checked the crowd though murmurs followed their progress to the van. As Guiteau slunk into it there was a yell from the crowd and men and boys ran along after the van screaming and hooting "hang him! hang him!" and some person called out in a tone that must have rung in the ears of the wretched man inside, "President Garfield's death is avenged."

Scoville after a New Trial.

Guiteau said last night that the next move in the Guiteau case would be a motion for a new trial, which he expects to file Saturday. The main points which it will be based upon are that the jury erred in rendering a verdict contrary to evidence; that Judge Cox, in his charge, did not base it upon all the evidence, and the jury during the trial read papers and had conversations with outside persons. Should the motion be denied appeal will be taken to court in banc in April. Referring to the verdict Scoville said that after hearing Cox's charge he was not surprised that the jury rendered a verdict of guilty. He refrained however from passing any criticism upon Cox's charge further than to say he had not been accustomed to hear a judge address a jury as Judge Cox did, but simply submit written instructions and this upon law bearing upon the case and not upon evidence. Mr. Scoville thought that Judge Cox did not review the entire evidence given in the case, but only a portion of it. Guiteau is said by some to have appeared the coolest person in the court room at the time the verdict was announced.

Scoville believes Guiteau will become a raving maniac. He does not talk to-night like a man who thinks his labor in this matter is at an end. There is good ground he says for a new trial, and he proposes to show this from the record of the trial when popular feeling against Guiteau has died away. In that record, he says, will be found the fact that a letter from Guiteau to District Attorney Corkhill, with the signature and large parts of its contents torn off, was admitted in evidence. Besides this there is expert testimony which he says is condemned [illegible] the country, [illegible] their facts not matters of record, all of which can be used as reasons for asking for a new trial.

The Opinion of a Juror.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—Bright, one of the jurors, said, [illegible] that there had never been a moment [illegible] the evidence was complete [illegible] jurors [illegible] a verdict, and he did not [illegible] the arguments of counsel [illegible] impression [illegible] upon the jurors. He [illegible] jurors [illegible] a verdict of insanity. The jury was instructed [illegible] isolation, and Bright said that while he had felt the deprivation of associates he could not speak too highly of the faithful manner in which the bailiffs had performed their disagreeable duty. The jury, he said, [illegible] ignorant of the drift of public opinion during the trial and had not been at all impressed with the belief that Guiteau was insane, the unanimous opinion being that his insanity was shammed.

Mrs. Garfield and the Guiteau Trial.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 26.—Inquiry was made to-day of Mr. Rudolph, brother of Mrs. Lucretia R. Garfield, as to how the late president's widow received the news of Guiteau's conviction. He answered that he has been at Mrs. Garfield's home almost every day during the trial and never heard the subject mentioned. Mrs. Garfield, apparently, has taken no interest in the trial from the first.

BY ATLANTIC CABLE.

Russia's Injustice to the Jews.

LONDON, Jan. 26.—The relief committee organized in Warsaw after the termination of the Jewish riots, estimate the sufferers lost 766,399 roubles, and 150,000 roubles have already been subscribed for their relief. The memorial to the czar in behalf of Russian Jews, which Prince Labanoff, Russian ambassador at this court has declined to transmit, is conciliatory. It attributes the anti-Jewish riots in Russia in most cases to professional revolutionary agitators, but relative to the future prospects of Jews in Russia it expresses regret that the instructions issued to the commissioners of equity are couched in terms of opprobrium and hostility calculated to give the populace false ideas that the maltreatment of the Jews has imperial sanction.

The Straw Bond Case.

The straw bond star route case was resumed to-day in the police court. The cross-examination of Webster as to identification of bids began, and Wilson for defense attempted to obtain a separate recognition for each paper. Bliss and Cook of the prosecution objected, while Wilson defended the course he was pursuing, and was replied to by Col. Bliss, followed by Totten, for defense. The last named was reviewing the case when he was interrupted by Bliss, and a somewhat angry colloquy ensued. During this time the court repeatedly urged counsel on both sides to come to some agreement as to how the court should possess itself of the information necessary for rendering a just and intelligent decision. Finally the objection offered by counsel for government was sustained, and Wilson, resuming cross examination, questioned witness Webster as to the circumstances attending his identification of papers at the post-office department. Nothing new was developed, and prosecution announced no other witness. Court then examined a number of papers and passed them over to counsel for defense. After half an hour, Col. Bliss called attention to the defense wasting time in making a pretense of examining papers. Court declared he could not do otherwise than assume that defense was making a bona-fide examination, and counsel continued the same. An hour was thus employed, when the court stated it had taken sufficient examination of the papers, and [illegible] had found the investigation satisfactory. Defense contended the opportunity [illegible] to permit making such an admission, and [illegible] exception to the court's ruling upon any share of the papers than those examined by it. The court said it would [illegible] proceed to a full examination. Adjourned.

Comments on the Verdict.

The condemnation of President Garfield's assassin [illegible] of conversation throughout the city at every crossing, at hotel lobbies and public places. The verdict of the jury was well indorsed, although [illegible] it was a surprise. All, however, were unanimous in the opinion that whatever the verdict was, the assassin would finally expiate his great crime on the gallows. Some mentioned that Guiteau was undoubtedly a lunatic, and that it would be far better for the name and fame of the country had the wretch been pronounced insane and imprisoned for life in an asylum. Everybody speaks in the highest terms of the patient and earnest jury and upright judge who conducted the trial. Judge Cox's course in allowing the prisoner such wide latitude in court gave Guiteau a chance to bring about his own condemnation. Expressions of sympathy for the brother and sister of the assassin were universal. Guiteau was furnished with an excellent supper last night, and although he had said he was very hungry yet he ate sparingly. Warden Crocker informed him that hereafter a guard would constantly be stationed at his cell door. Warden Crocker said: "I do not anticipate that the prisoner will make any attempt at self-destruction, but it is my duty to guard against any possible attempt of the kind. The prisoner is evidently badly broken down. I have noticed for the past ten days that his self-assurance was gradually failing him, but he has an extraordinary amount of hopefulness in his make-up. To the very last act in the terrible drama he will hope for something to turn up and save him from the gallows. You can put it down that he fully comprehends his terrible situation. He does not prate about providence and the Lord's care as he did in the past." Crocker made a prediction that the prisoner would gradually succumb to fear as the final days draw nigh. He, as well as the other prison officials, are fairly of the opinion the prisoner has been a sane man since he was confided to their care.

At New York.

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—People here are entirely satisfied with the verdict of the jury in the case of Guiteau. "So say we, all of us," is the verdict returned by the people everywhere, according to the telegraph. There is general relief that the long trial is ended.

At Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 26.—The news of Guiteau's conviction is received here with the greatest satisfaction. Announcement of the verdict was made at the opera house between acts and was greeted with round after round of applause.

At Lafayette, Indiana.

LAFAYETTE, IND., Jan. 26.—There is but one sentiment here, that of intense gratification at the news of Guiteau's conviction.

THE ROCKY MOUNTAIN TUNNEL.

[Helena, Montana, Herald.]

Thursday, January 5, was a proud day for Helena, and the people who now dwell in any part of the territory, as well as the increasing thousands that shall hereafter seek here a home, have little less occasion to rejoice with us in the work so auspiciously begun. About fifteen miles by the circuit of the road, following by a steady ascent of the windings of gulches, the traveler from the capital finds himself at the head of a deep wooded gulch, which [illegible] by an almost perpendicular wall of [illegible] Austin gulch, though [illegible] the crest of the [illegible] Rocky mountains [illegible] a mile distant.

Contrary to [illegible] received opinion, [illegible] of [illegible] is full of practicable passes. As [illegible] pass of easier grades than [illegible] the veteran engineer, searching the vicinity with his experienced eye, finds a better route [illegible] than any other where others [illegible] discover nothing but an impenetrable granite wall. [illegible] of the approaching engineering skill does not turn aside for such a slight obstacle as a mountain of a few thousand feet in height and thickness. The identical spot of entrance and exit is marked and forthwith the siege begins. What has been done at Mont Cenis, Hoosac and St. Gothard is now in process of realization before our eyes and within hearing of our ears as we go about our business on the streets of Helena. Where but a few days ago was one of the wildest fastnesses of our mountain wilderness is now a busy settlement. Dense timber has been transmuted to comfortable log houses, "the sound of the ax, hammer and drill, the puff of the steam engine, varied by the occasional whistle and blast, is now incessant. Contractor Muir with his experienced corps of assistants is in command of forces more powerful than any that ever marched under the proudest banner to the havoc of war. It is comparatively a small numerical force, but a powerful host is at command. Even our thin mountain air can be compressed to such a ferocity that it will strike 300 giant blows every minute.

It seems as if the age of miracles had returned when the heaviest sledge hammers are forged out of light air, and when science, at the suggestion of commerce, says to the solid mountain, "Open your granite gates," and the pathway to the Pacific is forevermore unobstructed to the ponderous, ever-lengthening trains running to and fro on the errands of civilization. In no profane spirit we think of Moses seeking the deliverance of his people from Egyptian bondage, when at God's command the waters of the Red Sea divided and gave the hard-pressed fugitives deliverance. The divine spirit that God has planted in man, nursed into consciousness of its origin and mission by the patient vigils of science, says to the eternal hills, "Aside," or "Open," and presently a pathway appears that never closes, and perpetual deliverance is wrought for three continents and the commerce of two great oceans for all time to come.

The work begun yesterday is not in any sense experimental. The day of its completion can be marked already on the calendar of 1883. Of the 300 witnesses who watched the starting of the drills yesterday by our governor and mayor, as many as will gather there, eighteen months hence will see issue from that hole in the granite wall, trains of palace cars from Portland and Olympia, or freighted with the fruit of Oregon orchards, or perhaps the teas and silks of China. Seeing is believing. The deferred hope of years were dissipated by the [illegible] which had so long seemed to elude their grasp. It was a bountiful banquet that the Northern Pacific officers, per Merrick and his little lady, spread before the hungry crowd of Helena's citizens yesterday afternoon, but the feast provided for their eyes, of which Muir, Garner and Warner were the chief caterers, was the most soul-satisfying of all the years of their existence. The pipes at Lucknow did not sound more welcome to the beleaguered English than the sound of these drills on the granite flanks of the Rocky mountains.

It was a day that will be ever memorable in the history of Montana. It marks emphatically the transition from the old to the new. Every one felt as never before a grateful recognition of the mighty benefits that the Northern Pacific Railroad Company were preparing to bestow upon them. There must and will be zealous cooperation on the part of all our citizens with the authorities in charge of this great enterprise. It may be said by some narrow-minded persons that these railroad men are merely working for pay for those who in turn are working solely for their own interest. Granting all the truth there may be in this mean, paltry way of putting it, the other truth remains that each and all are working as truly and directly for our interests also as if we paid the whole cost.

A Wholesale Verdict.

Hanford, conductor of the same train, Edward Hanford, engineer of the leading [illegible] engineer of the [illegible] Chicago express [illegible] John M. [illegible] of the New York Central railroad company, and the officers and managers of the New York Central and Hudson River [illegible] culpable negligence [illegible] each [illegible] responsible [illegible] no palliation whatever for the criminal carelessness and disregard for human life exhibited by the employes of the company.

[illegible] "What do you know about the [illegible] and the mumps, and this so-called Great German Remedy?" "My esteemed friend of the press," observed the jolly Joseph, "I know that it cures, rheumatism and all similar painful troubles give way to the magical influence of the remedy in question (St. Jacobs Oil) just as butter melts in the sun. As they say way down in Memphis, (I came from there eighteen years ago), 'It just scoops the deck as a painkiller.' No article in our house has ever enjoyed so large a sale as St. Jacobs Oil, and none seems to give such great satisfaction. We can scarcely keep a stock on hand. This morning I telegraphed to Baltimore for twenty-five gross. We have over thirty orders to-day for the article from the country all around. To Jackson, Amador City, Grass Valley, Rocklin and Lincoln we shipped no less than fourteen dozen bottles yesterday. From everywhere we hear of its wonderful curative properties, and the oil is going just as fast as that immense assortment of holiday specialties you see yonder. Why, only last Saturday an old lady living on Eighth street handed me this clipping from the San Francisco Chronicle, with the remark that the oil was beyond all doubt the greatest discovery of the times; it had cured her of severe rheumatism. For the benefit of those who may be afflicted with this painful complaint, the item in question is herewith produced. As stated above, it is taken from the columns of the San Francisco Chronicle.

A gentleman connected with the San Francisco press, who has more than usual desire to inform himself on current events, and to become acquainted with every fact of importance, has had considerable experience of late in ascertaining the real standing of a certain article which is being prominently placed before our people by means of the press and otherwise. He has made diligent inquiry. Neither rich nor poor has escaped his researches, and he is compelled, even against his inclination, to acknowledge the popularity of the preparation in question, and that the demand, at present great, is growing steadily. In the course of his rambles he dropped in at the Selby Smelting and Lead Works at North Beach, where he had a chat with Mr. Layne, the superintendent. The gentleman remarked: "I recently had occasion to give St. Jacobs Oil a thorough trial. I had bruised myself badly in the chest, and the great German remedy was applied with the most happy result," said Mr. Layne, "and, furthermore, I have cured my horse of a sprained ankle by the same Oil." The reporter made a mental memoranda of the case, and when he saw W. T. Wenzell, the pharmaceutical chemist, corner of Market and Stockton streets, he has asked him his opinion of the Great German Remedy. "Oh," said Mr. Wenzell, "the sooner and more thoroughly the public know about the St. Jacobs Oil the better. I think they are learning its merits rapidly, for it is the best selling article I have in stock. It is safe to say, judging from my customers' reports, it is an admirable [illegible] rheumatic pains and all kinds of aches." James H. Gates, at the corner of New Montgomery and Howard streets, is another chemist of reputation who was consulted in regard to the remedy, its use and its popularity. He put his opinion [illegible] great [illegible] [illegible] St. Jacobs Oil is [illegible] [illegible] Mr. Gates for the information [illegible] called [illegible] corner of Third and [illegible] streets, and were told by them that their customers spoke very highly of the oil as a cure for all pain.

"[illegible] its popularity," continued Messrs. H. & [illegible] "is the [illegible] It is selling like hot cakes, and we have [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] to the information gatherer, "you had better go down among the workshops to get actual facts as to the reputation of the Great German remedy." Agreeing that this was a good idea, our indefatigable truth seeker wended his way towards Mission, Beale, Fremont and Main streets. His first encounter was with Mr. C. C. Gilmore, foreman of the extensive [illegible] factory of Hobbs, Wall & Co., Beale and Main streets. Mr. Gilmore cheerfully testified to the efficacy of St. Jacobs Oil in cases that had come under his own observation. "I consider it the best in use in the world for rheumatism," he said, "one friend of mine was cured of a severe case by its use, and another recovered from a lame back after applying the Oil a few times. You can get plenty of facts of the same kind in this neighborhood." Mr. C. S. Biglow, one the proprietors of the Western Iron Works, 115 and 218 Mission street, between Fremont and Beale, was even warmer in his praise of St. Jacobs Oil than Mr. Gilmore. To use his own words, he considered it "the boss medicine for rheumatism," for he himself had been cured of a severe case by its use. Pursuing his inquiries the gatherer of facts entered the Mechanics' Mills, at the corner of Mission and Fremont streets, owned by Wells, Russell & Co. where he was introduced to Mr. John Welsh, the foreman. "Have you had any experience," he asked, "of this St. Jacobs Oil, or observed whether the men in the shop use it as a remedy in case of accidents or for pains?" "I believe they use nothing but this Oil," replied Mr. Welsh. "One of the hands employed in the mills jammed his foot badly not long ago, and in a short time, after applying the Oil thoroughly he was entirely cured. Had it not been for the great German remedy he would have been laid up for a week. In my opinion there is no article under the sun equal to St. Jacobs Oil for the purpose it is designed." Being pretty well satisfied by these inquiries of the value of the great German remedy and the universality of its use, the gentleman of the press had concluded to seek no further; but it was suggested to him that the Fulton Iron Works, the important establishment of Hinckley, Spiers & Hayes on Fremont street, might contribute to his stock of information, and he bent his way thither. He found the proprietors, and their testimony was most conclusive. "St. Jacobs Oil," they said, "is an indispensable article in our works. The hands employed say they cannot do without it. They have used the remedy for sprains, bruises, burns, cuts and all kinds of hurts and accidents, and it has never failed to cure. It is a article that is worth the highest recommendation."

PORT CHARGES.

A great deal has been said about excessive port charges in the Columbia and Willamette rivers. These charges are high—much too high—but high as they are they do not compare unfavorably with those of our principal port on the Pacific. The journals of San Francisco have at last been moved to an exposure of the charges levied upon ships entering and departing from San Francisco bay. The charges are tabulated in this way, the items being furnished to the Examiner by Capt. Menzies, a well known stevedore; the vessel being, say, of 1600 tons burthen:

Towage (in and out of port)	$1200
Pilotage (in and out of port)	343
Stevedore (charges for unloading 2100 tons)	865
Loading (charges for 2100 tons)	843
Consignees' commissions (about)	1800
Quarantine officer and boatman	100
Advance money to crew	1200
Water (one cent per gallon)	75
Butcher bill (in port)	300
Wharfage	300
Surveyor's fees	30
Clerk's fees	50
Tonnage dues	500
Lumber for dunnage, stowing cargo, etc	500
Total	$8156

The Bulletin reprints the above from the Examiner, with the statement that the items tally with information obtained from other sources, and may be taken as substantially correct. It is added by the Bulletin that the charges for towing a medium-sized ship in and out of San Francisco harbor are "anywhere from $1000 to $1500." Instances of excessive charges for services rendered to vessels are given, as follows: "The ship Rockhurst's bill for towage from Port Costa is assessed at $1000. The Crested Wave got fouled by her cable, and the tug monopoly charged $1000 for getting her clear, a service which took about one hour's time. Another ship dragged her anchor in the stream. The monopoly charged $1000 for moving her to her anchorage. A French ship, loading wheat, drifted across the Union street slip. The manager of the tugboat monopoly wanted $5000 for moving her; $500 would have been a very stiff price for the service. The captain of the ship Aphrodite said that he could take his ship into New York, on a verbal agreement for tonnage, for the sum of $500. Here, for substantially a like service, it would cost $1000. This tonnage is irrespective of pilot fees, which, in the case just mentioned, were $171 for coming into this port." The Bulletin further complains that it costs nearly four times as much to get in and out of San Francisco harbor, say for towage and pilot fees as far as Port Costa, thence to sea, as it costs to go up the Hoogly river to Calcutta and return, where it requires from two to three days of tug and pilot service to get in and out.

High as the charges of towage and pilotage are on the Columbia river bar, they are actually less than those at San Francisco. These charges, in and out of the Columbia river, for a 1600 ton ship, are about $1200, as against $1548 for the like ship at San Francisco. Stevedore's charges here are less than there, as vessels here are loaded at 35 cents a ton, against 40 cents in the table of San Francisco charges. For wharfage here no charge is made; water likewise is free; the quarantine officer's fee is only a trifle, surveyor's fee is but half that charged at San Francisco, and lumber for dunnage can be had here for one-third less than there. Tonnage tax, collected by the United States, is of course the same at all ports. Other items in the above schedule may be neglected, as we may assume that consignees' commissions and advance money to men will be equal at the two places,—though owners of goods shipped may probably make better terms with commission houses here than at San Francisco, while such supplies as butcher's meat may unquestionably be had here for less money. Astoria therefore is now a much cheaper port than San Francisco; and except for towage and lighterage Portland would be too. Even with towage and lighterage on the river the cost to a ship is but little greater at Portland than at San Francisco. This was shown most convincingly by Mr. C. P. Church in his article published in THE OREGONIAN about two weeks ago. With the rivers properly dredged, as they will be, and cheap and efficient tug service on the bar, the charges at Portland will soon be less than at San Francisco, unless the latter shall be greatly reduced. Notwithstanding all that has been said about excessive charges to shipping here, it is demonstrable from comparison between them and those levied at San Francisco, that the cost at Portland is no more, on an average, than 40 cents a ton in excess of that at the chief port on the Pacific. Let it be observed, too, that measures are being taken which will certainly reduce the charges here. Material reduction may be expected within one year. Our charges are too high, but they have been greatly exaggerated in statements published abroad.

"PUT AND CALL."

It has been announced that the San Francisco chamber of commerce has adopted for the grain market the system of "put and call" in vogue at Chicago. The Stockton Independent says this innovation of the usual method of buying and selling on this coast is looked upon with disfavor by most of the solid, substantial dealers in grain, who have for years been accustomed to an entirely different method of doing business. These men claim that the system is fraught with danger here, while it may work well in those cities where the necessities of trade first inaugurated the style, which since has not been changed. They point to the fact that the whole business of handling and disposing of the grain crop must be changed to meet the requirements of the new order, especially the warehouse system. As it now is, the man who stores in a warehouse under the present arrangement, can demand the grain he stored when he markets it. Under the proposed system, the grain would all be graded, and certificates given for the number of pounds or bushels stored, with the grade to which the grain belonged. The warehousemen would be compelled to give security, for their ability to produce an equal amount of grain when called upon by the holder of the certificate. But it is objected that this manner of buying and selling grain is not regulated by the laws of supply and demand, but by the mere spirit and strife of speculators—that these wheat certificates are the stock on which gamblers move the market to the injury of legitimate trade. Hence it is insisted that the whole business must be demoralizing and pernicious; that it is simply gambling in grain certificates, as the stock broker gambles in stocks of various kinds; that fictitious sales of grain at the stock board, which have no foundation in fact, are only calculated to affect the market in the interest of manipulators; that thousands of tons are bought and sold that have no existence in the market, and that such a system must prove injurious to the interests of the producer, because the laws of supply and demand and the legitimate basis of trade are altogether lost sight of. A broker at the board, it is urged, sells say 10,000 tons of wheat to be delivered in June at $1 60. It is for the seller's interest that wheat should rate lower on that day, for the buyer's interest that it should bring a higher price than the contract calls for. On this margin or balance the gambling is conducted. No wheat changes hands in the transactions noted. When the contract time expires, the parties simply settle the difference between the price called for and that which obtains. If the grain sold for $1 60 should go up to $1 75, the seller pays the margin, and should it be worth but $1 50 he has the margin of profit on his side. He sold for a falling market, hence he will endeavor to fill his contract at as low rates as possible. In this strife the market is never settled, and the quotations are at all times unreliable, because affected by local causes and the manipulation of designing dealers, who force quotations up and down accordingly as they control by combinations the stock on hand. Again, under this system, it is possible for a few keen operators to buy up all the wheat on the coast, or "get up a corner on wheat," as it is called, and by keeping their operations secret ruin hundreds in the crash. While the interior press of California argues in this way against the system, journals of San Francisco argue for it. The Chronicle insists that it will prevent "corners" in ships; that a speculative market on this coast will strengthen the hands of the farmer, and that higher prices will result from the speculative and consumptive movements in trade which will follow the adoption of the Chicago system.

LOW RAIL RATES.

Grain shipments down the Mississippi river have dwindled to trifling proportions. In May and June last the river shipments averaged 466,000 bushels per week. For the month of July they were 941,000, and for August 432,000. But since August—that is, for the last four months of the year 1881—they have been 1,130,000 in all, or an average of but 61,000 bushels a week. In these four months the New Orleans receipts were 2,660,700 bushels—much more than double the river shipments. Thus at present the river seems unable to compete with the railroads to New Orleans, not to say the roads to the east. Really the river is not now an element in the competition, because at present New Orleans has virtually ceased to export. In the four weeks ending December 31, its aggregate grain exports were 79,512 bushels, and in the four months ending with December they were but 317,881 bushels—the total exports of Atlantic ports in that time having been 22,820,000 bushels. No other explanation than the low rail rates is needed. Last year at this time the railroads were getting about 23½ cents a bushel for carrying wheat from St. Louis to New York; and two years ago their charge was 27 cents; now they take it for about 8½ cents or less. That the New Orleans route should succeed when competing with the latter rate, and fail when the competing route reduces from 23½ to 8½ cents, is in no respect surprising. But the barges are still in existence, and ready to compete with the railroads when the latter charge paying rates. Their owners suffer comparatively little by their idleness, because the capital invested in the barges is comparatively a trifle.

Speaker Keifer is one of the highest of high protectionists. But he errs in asserting that his party stands united on a plane with himself. He has made up the house committees with a view of maintaining the doctrines of the extreme protectionists. In reply to criticisms upon his action he says, "I determined to make chairman of the committee on ways and means the oldest member of the house, the oldest member of the committee on ways and means, who is the man who represents in the highest sense the protective tariff idea of the republican party." But it happens that there are great numbers of republicans who do not feel that Mr. Kelley, who, because of his devotion to a prohibitory tariff, especially in favor of the Pennsylvania industries, has earned the sobriquet of "Old Pig-Iron," represents them. But Keifer was in the hands of Pennsylvania, and he acted accordingly. There is hardly a newspaper of importance in the whole country that does not oppose the present system. When those men are excluded from the republican party whose sentiments on this question are reflected by such journals as the New York Times and Evening Post, the Cincinnati Commercial and Chicago Tribune, there will be left an aching void which "protection" can never fill.

Considerable indignation is manifested in England over the cool reception given by the Russian government to appeals in behalf of the persecuted Jews of the latter country. A memorial was lately prepared and signed by the representative Jews of Great Britain and many other persons of prominence asking that some action be taken by the czar in the above matter, but Prince Labanoff, the Russian ambassador at London, declined to forward the memorial, although its tone was conciliatory throughout. In the meantime the commission of equity appointed to inquire into the treatment of the Russian Jews has received instructions couched in such terms that they cannot be received by the populace as other than approval of their acts of persecution.

Speaking of the Guiteau case, the English Law Journal remarks that under the English law, a prisoner charged with felony cannot be tried in his absence, and that physical coercion can only be used to prevent an escape. If the judge is not able to impress the prisoner with the necessity of behaving himself properly, the only resource is to commit him for contempt and adjourn the trial, or discharge the jury. The Journal is of the opinion that both the English and American judges should have the power to remove a prisoner and proceed with his trial when they are of the opinion that justice cannot be decorously administered in the prisoner's presence.

The Bourbon "squawk" is still occasionally heard from the south. The Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle says that the efforts now making in that state to organize a party that will unite all the elements of opposition to the democratic organization "promises to demoralize business and cause bloodshed." Here still is an organ which regards it as a crime to set up an opposition party in the south. The sentence above quoted evidently means that any effort to do a thing of this kind will be met by bull-dozing and murder—if this writer can find kindred spirits to help him.

Gen. Grant cannot remain at Washington City because of the press of office-seekers upon him when there. So he stays away. He has been applied to by hundreds to interest himself in their behalf for an office under President Arthur. His friends say he will not impose upon the president by making all these requests. He disliked to refuse old friends who could not realize that each was but one of a thousand that were making similar calls. The result of it all is that he keeps away.

The New York Sun fails to see any evidence of the abandonment of the "third-term conspiracy." "Not a word," it says, "to that effect has been uttered by Grant. Not a syllable in that direction has dropped from any prominent politician who supported Grant for a third term in 1876 or 1880." "Moreover," adds the Sun, "if it were true that the project had been given up by Gen. Grant and his friends, some positive evidence of the fact would be forthcoming."

Judge Cox redeemed himself by his charge to the jury. It was as direct and effective as justice could require.

ANOTHER GOLD WATCH GIVEN AWAY!

NEW SERIAL STORY BY MRS. DUNIWAY.

READ CAREFULLY.

The publishers of the NEW NORTHWEST will begin, on THURSDAY, MARCH 2, 1882, the publication of a NEW SERIAL STORY, entitled

"THE MYSTERY OF CASTLE ROCK,"

A STORY OF THE PACIFIC NORTHWEST,

BY ABIGAIL SCOTT DUNIWAY,

And continue its publication from week to week for a period of six months. The serial is one of Mrs. Duniway's best literary efforts. It is powerfully written, embellished by vivid descriptions of natural scenery, accompanied by life-like delineations of character, and marked by deep analysis of the strongest phases of human nature, the whole connected by a deep and thrilling plot that will hold the reader's attention to the end. Its moral, "Be sure your sin will find you out," will find a ready response in all upright minds, while its happy sequel will not fail to please and satisfy them.

THE PRIZE WATCH FOR SUBSCRIPTIONS.

We will give an ELEGANT AMERICAN HUNTING-CASE SOLID GOLD WATCH (Elgin make) as a PRIZE to the man or woman, boy or girl, who will bring or send, on or before the evening of March 1, 1882, the greatest number of new subscriptions, accompanied by the cash. In addition to this liberal offer, we will pay a commission of 20 per cent. on all new subscriptions, thus paying all canvassers for their work. But the successful competitor for the watch will be allowed no commission, as the prize will be his or her compensation. The rates for the paper are $3.00 or $1.50 for six months. Two six months' subscriptions will count for the prize as one yearly subscription.

TWO WATCHES OF ABOUT EQUAL VALUE,

A Lady's and a Gentleman's, are on exhibition in the window of J. VAN BEURDEN, the well known jeweler, at No 107 First street. He will take pleasure in showing them to any and all interested. Inspection is solicited. They are both handsome and valuable time-pieces, and are warranted as represented by Mr. Van Buerden. The winner can select either watch.

THE FIRST CHAPTER OF "THE MYSTERY OF CASTLE ROCK"

Will be ready next Monday, Jan. 30th, in the form of a printed circular and all who desire to canvass should either call or send to the publication office, No. 5 Washington street, up stairs, for both circulars and sample copies of the NEW NORTHWEST, which will be furnished free at any time after that date. Those who compete may send names and money as fast as received, retaining the commission, which the person who wins the watch will be required to forward when the result is published in the city press of March 2d. All subscriptions must be sent in by 6 o'clock P. M. on March 1st, and under no circumstances will there be an extension of time. Remember, that the first watch we offered (in September last) was secured by a lad who brought in but thirteen yearly and six semi-yearly subscribers.

It costs nothing to try for this watch; and even if you do not secure it, you get paid for your work. Send for circular and samples and try for it.

MOB RULE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

I have neither the intention nor the desire to trouble you with a lengthened controversy on the recent deplorable affair at Seattle, and yet if your courtesy will allow, I would like a further single opportunity for a few words in reference to the principles here involved. My claim is that this unlawful mode of punishing crime is wrong because it strikes at the very foundation principles of government, subverts justice, excites the worst passions of the people, educates them into toleration of lawlessness, and approval of private vengeance, and reproduces the very crimes and criminals it seeks to destroy. If we are so blind and passionate as not to be willing to look forward to the legitimate consequences of our actions, of course we cannot see these things. I take it that here is the great distinguishing mark between savage and civilized life. The savage avenges his wrongs—supposed or real—by his own hand, by the aid of his family, his clan or tribe. Out of this condition of things grow all the horrors we are familiar with in savage life. Civilization has taken the administration of justice out of private hands, and put it into the hands of the courts, surrounded it with all possible guards and defences, clothed it with all the known sanctions of law, and invested it with all the powers of the state and the nation. Now the course you advocate and defend reverses all this, and remands the administration of justice to its savage condition, with all its attendants of violence, passion and swift revenge. In doing this you admit that it is wrong in principle, and only right in this and other exceptional cases. But here is the great weakness of this position. Who is to be the judge whether the case is exceptional or not? A passionate and furious mob. Is there no danger of awful and irretrievable mistakes in such a course? Surely the innocent as well as the guilty may be swept down in such a mad onslaught; and by joining in the cry of "stop thief" the real criminal may substitute an innocent victim in his own stead. From what we know of this case it seems that these wretched men were guilty of the crimes with which they were charged. But the possibility of a mistake was such as should have stayed the hand of every man who knows the value of human life and the awful responsibility of taking it away by wrong and violence.

As to the claim of necessity in this case, it is by no means apparent. The presence of a couple of footpads in such a city as Seattle was not enough to call for such lawless and brutal proceedings as these. I am informed by a prominent lawyer of Washington territory that the history of the administration of justice in that country in past times furnishes not the least possible justification for this course, but on the contrary. There was no more call for lynch law there than in any other city or county in the country. And yet such is the demoralization in the common sentiment that every newspaper in the country utters its loud applause, without waiting a moment to inquire what cause there was for this course of blood and violence. The combined efforts of the people to detect and capture those suspected criminals was well enough. This is in accordance with law and usage, and works no wrong to the innocent and unoffending.

These men were arrested, were in the hands of the law, were arraigned before the lower court, and were held for trial.

If they had been found guilty they doubtless would have received the full penalty of their crimes, under such forms and sanctions of law as would have been a terror to other evil doers, without a lasting disgrace to the community.

You say the people are weary of "platitudes about the majesty of the law and want to hear more about the administration of justice," but if there is any fault or failure in the administration of justice, who is to blame? It seems to me that those who make such complaints against the courts and officers of the law are but condemning themselves. These officers of justice are the chosen ones of the people, chosen for the very qualities which the people require for the due administration of the law. One of these officers—the sheriff—has just died. He had been elected to that office for several consecutive years, and we have the testimony of one of the journals of the same city that no better man lived in that community. Jurors are supposed to be taken from the most intelligent, just and honest portion of the community, and are elected for the possession of these very qualifications. Judges are chosen by the people for the possession of higher qualifications still. When the trial comes, the jury is sifted and resifted that no improper or unqualified man may be left to defeat the ends of justice; and then under all the solemnities of an oath, charged with the trial of offenses against the law. Every officer from the judge down to the lowest constable is a picked and chosen man—picked and chosen by the people. Now, if what is said about the corruption and venality of the courts, the impossibility of obtaining justice at their hands be true, what becomes of all your boasting about a "government of the people, for the people, and by the people?" I am to suppose that it means the people congregated as a mob, armed with axes and crowbars, breaking down the doors of jails, and dragging their wretched inmates forth with carts and ropes, to dangle by their necks in the public squares of our cities! This is the great marvel to me, that the picked men of the community cannot be trusted on a sworn jury, but all can be trusted on a hastily formed vigilance committee. Justice cannot be submitted to a court where solemn responsibility dwells, where time must be taken to ripen facts, where care, caution and unimpassioned patience preside, but can be surrendered to the furious passions and swift vengeance of a mob! That men of knowledge and intelligence, charged with the common responsibilities of society, can support and defend this course in their cool and calm moments is to me beyond comprehension. If the courts and juries of the people's own choice and making are wrong or rotten in construction or character, then let us address the remedy to the real evil, but not resort to lawless and destructive measures that will destroy the very foundation of law and government. This is a large subject, and as one contemplates it it reaches far and wide in its bearings and relations upon the best and most precious things of life. I am not about to follow these out, nor to trespass much longer upon your patience or that of your readers. I could speak of the deplorable influence of such acts, and their commendation by the press, upon the young of our generation; of the awful scene that must follow when reprisals and retaliation are sought by the friends and adherents of these victims of violence; and of the fruit these offences bear in the spirit of general lawlessness they beget and foster. I could claim that this wretched assassin of our chief magistrate, to whom you have referred, is in character the legitimate outgrowth of the very principles and practices here in question. He was a law unto himself, and so is a mob. He had an "inspiration" to kill our president, and so a mob has an inspiration to execute its own will—now, maybe, against some red-handed murderer, but the next time against some defenceless creature that has become the innocent victim of its rage. I could suggest that while the probabilities seem that these wretched tramps—gibbeted to make a holiday—have none to retaliate, and that their memories will be buried in their dishonored graves; it may possibly be otherwise. Some friend or brother of like lawless and desperate spirit may yet appear, to constitute himself the avenger of blood, and track some one or more of the authors and leaders in this tragedy through every hour of his life till the fatal knife or pistol, at the heart of himself, wife or child, satiates the spirit of vengeance and counts again "blood for blood!" The very possibility of such a sequence shows how terrible and how far reaching may be the consequences of this ill-advised beginning. I could suggest further to any other community in this country meditating a similar course—as now advised—that they had better take a second thought. We are now inviting the people of other states and countries, where law and order are respected, to come here and share with us the many good things we claim to have at the hand of nature. It will not surprise them to know that there should be here, as elsewhere some deeds of violence and blood shed, by the tramps and vagabonds that infest every land. But I think it would cause many to deliberate and hesitate, if they knew, they were about to commit themselves, their families, their property and all their earthly interests to a community, where press and people, with one voice would defend and applaud the lawless and brutal violence of a mob of four hundred, or four thousand "best citizens."

In conclusion let me say that I have purposely refrained from putting this matter on higher ground than that of the obligations of the law of the land and the best interests of society. There are other grounds to which I might have been expected to look, but to which I shall only refer by way of illustration and confirmation of what has been said. You know, perhaps, that in the services of the church at whose altars I minister there is a portion of holy scripture appointed for every separate Sunday of the year, called the "Epistle for the Day." That appointed for last Sunday, the third Sunday after Epiphany, and the Sunday immediately following this tragedy, is from the 12th chapter of St. Paul's Epistle to the Romans, and contains the following passages: "Be not wise in your own conceits. Recompense to no man evil for evil. Dearly beloved, avenge not yourselves, but rather give place unto wrath; for it it is written, "Vengeance is Mine; I will repay, saith the Lord. Be not overcome of evil, but rather overcome evil with good." It seems to me that when the congregations of Washington Territory and Oregon—and all others on the coast—heard these words at the services of last Sunday morning, some persons might have supposed they were chosen for the special occasion, while all must have thought them most fit and appropriate to that state of mind into which many people in our country have been thrown by this unhappy affair.

If the spirit of these inspired words animated all hearts, you would have little occasion to approve or I to disapprove of such acts as we have been commenting upon. I am respectfully yours,

B. WISTAR MORRIS.

A VIGOROUS REPLY.

The Rev. Geo. H. Watson, rector of Trinity Episcopal church in Seattle, delivered last Sunday evening a sermon upon "The Nature and Power of Sin." In the course of his remarks the reverend gentlemen thus alluded to the events of the past week.

My friends, we have had an instance—a terrible instance—presented to our view during the last week, of the fearful nature and awful power of sin. Depravity, total or almost so, has been set before us in all its hideousness. A stricken family and outraged community are the sad results. I care not to dwell upon the event which has cast a gloom over all the city. Nor would I even mention it tonight (since its sadness passes human speech) were it not that a criticism, lately published in the daily press of Portland, and disseminated throughout our town—a criticism which has been the subject of much discussion wherever read, coming, as it does, from high authority, demands an answer from myself, as a clergyman of the same church of which the writer of said criticism is a bishop; even if I were not also a citizen of Seattle, and therefore responsible with the people here, whether in the right or wrong.

I say then, first, that there was no "mad mob" on Wednesday last; nor has this city sustained any "deep and lasting disgrace" from the events of that day." The so-called mob consisted of 250 of the best citizens of Seattle. Their plans were duly formulated and adopted in public meeting. These plans included (as I am well informed) the execution of Payne (Sire's murderer), together with the other two, in case the latter should be found guilty. I am further well informed that if the most complete evidence had not been found against the two men charged with murdering Geo. Reynolds, the 250 men were pledged to see that they left them in safety. I am further informed that Judge Green has said that it was a great comfort to him that the evidence against the two men was so convincing as to leave little doubt of their guilt.

I say, therefore, in the face of these statements, that the uncalled for accusation of the bishop of Oregon against the people of Seattle, has neither basis of fact, nor foundation of justice. There is no more law-abiding community than exists here in our city. No where is "lynch law" more deprecated as a rule. The very men who were most prominent in the affair of Wednesday, would to-morrow submit to the most unimportant subpena.

But crime had grown bold in the face of lax justice, and could be rebuked by no common method. A clergyman and a sea captain were laid under the ban of its ruthless touch in a single evening, but the laugh went round because no blood was shed. The next night a favorite of the city was stricken down. At once, as by lightning, all good men were adamo. Foolish folk talked of vengeance, wise folk talked of justice. The wise prevailed. A fair trial was had in open court in broad daylight, and at the close of the legal proceedings summary justice—eternal justice—was meted out to the guilty pair.

I am glad to bear my testimony to the fact that as regards all who were concerned in the sad affair—yes, as regards those who controlled the whole affair (for never for one moment, I believe, did any 'mob' take from the hands of the citizens' committee the direction of the matter)—I am glad, I say, to bear my testimony to the fact that while I sat in that court of justice, while further, I closely kept watch of the conduct of the masses, I saw no riot, no tumult, no thirsting for blood, nothing more (at worst) than merciless, implacable justice. He, then, who charges the citizens of Seattle with 'enacting an outrage in a spirit of madness and fury' knows nothing of the truth of the matter, and the bishop, in commending the Judge, has gone sadly out of his way to abuse the inhabitants of a city which is surpassed by none other on this Pacific slope in all that goes to make up a Christian civilization."

Vancouver arsenal as an arsenal is a thing of the past. It is now officially announced as Vancouver Barracks Ordnance Depot, and we are pleased to announce that Major John A. Kress retains command. The shipment of stores to Benicia arsenal has commenced. Some of the buildings have already been transferred to the quartermaster's department, and the transfer will be completed when the stores to be sent away are forwarded.

THE LAND GRANT WAR.

The Gould-Huntington Attack on the Northern Pacific Road and the Northwest.

OLYMPIA, W. T., Jan. 21, 1882.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Permit me to endorse your editorial on "The attack on the Northern Pacific land grant." The whole Northwest will say "well done." There has never been a time since the inauguration of the work of the Northern Pacific, when it has not had to contend directly or indirectly with the opposition of the Union Pacific and Central Pacific, now known as the Gould and Huntington interest. I know some of the inside history away back in the years past. Every attack of consequence made upon the Northern Pacific, has been more or less directed by the Union Pacific and Central Pacific interest, especially during the last ten years. And part of the procrastination and blunders of the old management have been more or less enacted in their interest. So long as the Northern Pacific was quiet and lacked energy and life, so long was the enemy at apparent ease. This ease or rest was only a blind to turn public attention from their purposes. As the Central Pacific and Southern Pacific played tyrant and oppressor in California, so will they now, if possible, destroy the present management of the Northern Pacific and the interests of the northwest, until such time as it suits their purpose to give us freedom and commercial life. They have now three friends in the supreme court of the United States. So if they can prevail with congress and destroy the Northern Pacific their own interests are secure. They are now the attacking party, through their agents in and out of congress. They will also fight the admission of Dakota and Washington as states through the democratic party, because the admission of these territories as states would strengthen the hands of the Northern Pacific and the northwest. Mr. Schurz followed the law and the precedent laid down by his predecessor. But had Mr. Schurz looked into the history of the precedent he would have discovered the cloven foot of the Central Pacific, the very power that now attacks him and the Northern Pacific because he followed the law laid down by the influence of the corporate iniquity of the Central Pacific. The U. P. and C. P. are determined to prevent the completion of the N. P. To do this they begin, or rather renew, their attack on its land grant, which they hope to gobble for themselves when it suits their purpose. Thus they try to weaken the confidence of capitalists in the N. P., manufacture public opinion adverse to it and then come into the field with colors flying and promises of all kinds on their banners, to capture the hearts of the people while they steal away their substance. Our interests are with the N. P. and the northwest must have its own transcontinental road.

KILLED BY A KICK.

(SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN.)

DRAIN, Or., Jan. 26.—Levi Beckley, a farmer living near Elkton, in this county, was kicked to death by a horse while unhitching him from a plow about noon yesterday. Not having returned in the evening, his brother started to the field and found him lifeless, with a cut on the side of his head. He had not eaten his dinner, hence it is thought the accident happened before noon. Mr. Beckley was a highly respected citizen, and leaves a wife and two children.

Mrs. Susana Cruse died at the home of her son-in-law, A. D. Elgin, in Yakima county, on the 15th instant., aged 85 years. She had been a member of the Methodist church since her 22d year, and had lived in Oregon since 1852.

An important fact is known to the public. The gigantic All Star 30 minstrels will open at the New Market Saturday. Get your seats.

NERVE

BRAIN TREATMENT,

A CERTAIN CURE

FOR

HYSTERIA, DIZINESS,
MENTAL ANXIETY,
LOSS OF MEMORY, WEAKNESS,
SOFTENING OF BRAIN,
PREMATURE OLD AGE,

CAUSED BY

Over-Indulgence or Excesses,

AND

ALL DISEASES OF THE NERVOUS SYSTEM.

This treatment is compounded from the MEDICAL PROPERTIES of those foreign and indiginous plants which have the most Direct and Powerful Action Upon the Genital Organs; Tonic Stimulant, Anti-Spasmodic Relaxant, Febrifuge and Nervine.

It has been THOROUGHLY TESTED, and is proved to be the Best, Safest and most Effective Treatment known to Medical Science for Alleviating, Controling and Curing All Forms of the Diseases above mentioned.

The Treatment is Purely Vegetable—It contains no Mercury, Iron, Cantharides, or any injurious ingredients whatever, and

ITS USE IS IN NO CASE ATTENDED WITH THE SLIGHTEST DANGER.

Overwork of the Brain.

One of the greatest gifts to man is a great intellect. The power of achieving is a mighty power. As says the poet, "The mind forges from knowledge an archangel's spear, and thus compels the world and sues for empire." Brain power is one of the mightiest forces in the universe. The men of brain are the men who conquer success. They always carry about with them the unmistakable indices of success. Such men are brimful of enterprise, activity and organizing power. They are the leaders and commanders among men. Such men, of necessity, use up a large measure of nervous energy. They live, as it were, on their principal. They exhaust the vital forces. Muscular activity and travel do not prove remedial, from the simple fact that they always take their brains along with them, and keep them at work on their favorite projects just as constantly as when in their offices at home. The brain and body are not rivals; they are copartners. It matters not how nor where a thinking man works; whether at his desk giving directions, or at the forefront of mechanical enterprise, actually handling the tools and appliances, his brain works all the same. The thinking man is never still. His business is to rule. His character is inalienable.

"For just experience shows in every soil,
That those who think must govern those who toil."

Now, the great question is how to reinforce and replenish these mighty workers whose brains are challenged to the uttermost and whose vital forces pay out the drafts made upon them in such large and rapid installments. What recreating process is there against the wear to which their daily life constantly subjects them? It is a vital question.

Nerve and Brain Treatment.

The world moves, and science moves along with it. Every year some new discovery is made which mitigates the ills of life and lightens the burden of human woe. Medical science is ever at work seeking to repair the damages constantly recurring to poor human creatures. What is better still, it is the aim of medical science to go ahead and prevent disease altogether. This is its noblest aim. Of late years the best thought of medical science has been directed toward the prevention and cure of nerve and brain diseases.

Probably in the entire range of remedial agencies of this character nothing has ever been presented to the public that has wrought such wonderful cures as has the nerve and brain treatment of Dr. E. C. West. It has come to be known all over the land as an unfailing specific for all kinds of mental maladies, from an aggravating headache to incipient paralysis. It has been tested by thousands upon thousands of sufferers, whose unbounded joy and gratitude could be given in voluntary testimonials from every part of the country.

The Rationale of the Treatment.

Dr. West, in his treatment of the brain and nerves, proceeds upon the principle that the brain has its pathological anatomy, exactly as all the organs of the human economy have, and the pathology of the brain has its special series of symptoms, just as other organs have theirs. If all the varied disturbances of brain and nerve are not yet understood it is because the means of investigation are as yet imperfect. But Dr. West has made the subject a profound study, and by scientific analysis and experiments has discovered a remedy, which, by re-establishing the normal organic condition of the brain and nerves, restores their function and brings them into a state of health and activity.

Loss of Memory, and How to Cure It.

It has been said that one of the surest signs of waning mental power is the loss of memory. This is often caused by overwork, and by some great and sudden affliction. We all cherish the bright jewels of memory. We delight to revive the dear old times, and in "our memories preserve and still keep fresh, like flowers in water, those bright and happy days." To any and all who feel that memory is failing we commend this marvelous brain and nerve treatment of Dr. E. C. West.

It may be asked how this remedy acts. We will simply say, it has been compounded on the principle that a sound body is the foundation of a sound mind. Its primal work is to restore physical integrity. We too often exalt the mental at the expense of the physical. Yet it is a fact that the man who can best carry the burden of life looks well to the noble temple of the body. The mind does its best work when the machinery of the body runs without friction.

FRIDAY MORNING, JAN. 27, 1882.

THE NORTHWEST.

Eastern Oregon.

The number of sheep and horses has greatly increased in Union county during the last two years while cattle have decreased slightly.

There is a good deal of desirable land in the Cold Spring country awaiting settlement. The proximity to the Columbia river more than compensates for the slight difference in the soil of that region and of that which surrounds Weston. The season just closed has proved that in the production of cereals the gentle slopes of Vansycle, Juniper and Cold Spring have few equals. Those intending to "take up ranches" should not fail to visit that section of that immense county.

Southern Oregon.

L. C. Coleman, of Jacksonville, has sent to Germany for a quantity of the seeds of the plant known there as "reps" for J. N. T. Miller, who intends experimenting with it. The plant, which much resembles mustard, is cultivated for the seed, from which a valuable oil is pressed. The oil is largely used in cooking and for lubricating, and many other purposes, and its manufacture is very lucrative. Mr. Coleman thinks the climate and the soil of Southern Oregon well adapted to the successful cultivation of the plant.

Jacksonville Sentinel: Last week Harrison Kelley, the purchaser of the Coyote creek mining claims, so long in litigation, at sheriff's sale, demanded possession from Wm. Ruble, who was working them. On Ruble's refusal Kelley obtained an order from Judge Hanna directing Ruble to stay waste and discontinue working the claims. The order was served by the deputy sheriff, and Kelley then took possession, and, at last advices, is holding it. The title to this property has been in litigation for over four years, Ruble having been put in possession at the end of a suit against him by the Coyote creek G. & S. mining company. Kelley, the vendor, then commenced suit against Ruble and his associates, to enforce a vendor's lein, and at the last term of court held in this county a decision was given for him, execution issued and the property was sold by the sheriff on the 2d day of January, Kelley being the purchaser at $15,000. Mr. Kelley has a force of nine men and will endeavor to extract a little gold dust to reimburse him for his legal expenditures.

Washington Territory.

The total assessment of Walla Walla county for 1881 was $4,369,780. On this a total tax of $65,379 48 was levied. Up to date over $28,000 of the taxes due have been paid.

While there were mortgages received at the rate of one for every day in the year in Columbia county there were 155 real and 63 chattel mortgages satisfied, at least double the number satisfied in any preceding year.

The La Conner money order office was established August 16th last, and since that has done quite a rushing business. In four and a half months to December 31st that office issued orders amounting in the aggregate to the sum of $7859 74. This amount was issued in 350 orders

Articles of incorporation of the Seattle, Puget Sound and Gray's Harbor Railroad Company have been filed at Seattle. Incorporators and directors, Wm. A. Newell, Wm. Peel, J. R. Lewis, Richard Osborn, Geo. D. Hill, John M. Kolloch and John L. Prime; office and principal place of business, Seattle; object, to build, equip, run and maintain a railroad from Seattle to Gray's harbor, and to own and operate steamers and other vessels in connection with said road; capital stock, $2,000,000, divided into 40,000 shares at $50 each; duration of corporation, fifty years.

The new county of Garfield is officered by seven republicans and four democrats. Among the latter is the sheriff.

There were 2004 money orders issued, and 722 paid at the Vancouver postoffice in 1881. The first represented a value of $31,153 79; the last $1700 41.

The Coulter camp on Vancouver lake has taken a fresh start since New Years, and is now putting in about 1,300 feet of piling timber every day. The camp and the roads are now in order for pushing the work right along.

Idaho.

W. J. McConnell & Co., of Moscow, have commenced contracting for next year's flax crop.

Wesley Mulkey says he will furnish the building and the power for a linseed oil mill at Lewiston, provided other parties will furnish the necessary machinery and other fixings.

Stock running at large south of Lewiston have so far done quite well this winter, but in some places the grass is becoming short in consequence of being closely fed by Indian horses belonging on the reservation.

A letter from Capt. Guyor, superintendent of the Custer mill, under date of January 1st, says: "We have just moulded our last bar for 1881, which foots up $1,002,183 18 taken out since February 1, 1881, one even month's run. The mill is in splendid condition."

Negotiations have just been completed at Salt Lake for the consolidation of the Blackfoot and Bonanza stage line with the leading lines of the territory, of which Hon. John Hailey is superintendent. This brings all of the through, first-class lines of Idaho under one management.

MEXICO.

Progress of the Sonora Road.

GUAYMAS, Jan. 19.—The Sonora railroad is completed to beyond Estrella station, 21½ miles from Hermosillo. Stages will hereafter travel from Tucson to Hermosillo and connect at this point. Track-laying is being pushed forward at the rate of 1½ miles a day. The Cores, with three locomotives and 25 platform cars, has arrived, and no delay in sending material forward will be made.

After Apaches.

Authentic rumors are in town of an engagement of the state troops with the Apaches who raided Lompozo, resulting in the killing of 20 persons. The troops are in hot pursuit.

Corvette Arrived.

The Mexican corvette Guarda has arrived with 60 troops, and will sail for Feburon island to conquer rebel Indians there.

Shipping Notes.

The Newbern arrived on Sunday last with a full freight, and left Monday evening with $60,600 in treasure. D. B. Robinson and family, M. [illegible]iza, Messrs. Maller, Rickertson and Graves came [illegible] her and also six head of horned stock.

Scandinavian Laborers.

[New York Tribune.]

Mr. Villard makes a wise move in arranging to bring over from the Scandinavian countries a large body of laborers to work on the Northern Pacific railroad. After helping to finish the road, these men will add to its traffic by settling along the line and becoming stable and prosperous citizens. We get no better class of immigrants than the Scandinavians, and they show a marked preference for the new regions of the northwest, where the cold winters remind them of their old homes.

"I have divided my subject," began the parson, "into two heads." "Two heads with but a single thought," whispered Fogg to Mrs. F., and then he closed his eyes for his usual nap.

THURSDAY EVENING, Jan. 26.

The local wheat market has advanced slightly during the past week, and to-day may be quoted at $1 60 per cental. The advance is due to an improvement on the other side, and would be greater if ships had not been able to take the lion's share of the improvement in Europe. The large amount of eastern Oregon and Washington wheat ready for shipment has caused active bidding for ships, hence the advance in freights. By the close of the present week about all of the surplus from east of the mountains will have been shipped, except the stocks held by flouring mills, and about seven thousand tons on the Snake river, which must come down slowly.

Receipts of grain from the Willamette valley have been very small of late, the daily average for the past two weeks being not greater than twenty-five hundred sacks.

Charter rates have advanced temporarily from 2s 6d to 5s within the week, the least rate reported being 75s for a wooden vessel to a direct port. The amount of tonnage on passage and to arrive is supposed to be ample to remove the surplus, and so soon as the eastern grain is off from hands, tonnage rates will probably decline again.

Potatoes, for which there was such extraordinary demand last week, are off for the present, owing to very heavy receipts.

THE ENGLISH MARKET.

The Mark Lane Express of Saturday last, reviewing the English grain markets for the previous week says: "The young plant is strong and healthy. Farmers' deliveries are generally full conditions. There was moderate inquiry for sound samples. Others were neglected. Foreign, dull supply, especially American. Scarcity of American winter and spring red wheats seems likely, but their equivalent is handy. Off coast markets are inanimate, closing a little better. Seven cargoes arrived and four were sold. The floating bulk has slightly decreased. For flour there was a steady demand at firm values; supply moderate. Lower grades fell slightly on Monday. In foreign there was small spot supply at unchanged rates. A large increase of floating supply from America seems to point to a glut in the market similar to that of 1881, than which a greater disaster could scarcely befall trade. Barley, both native and foreign, is unchanged. Oats, unchanged. Foreign dull, declined 6d. Maize, slow, but values a fraction higher. Sales of English wheat for the week amounted to 50,012 quarters at 40s 10d per quarter, against 36,933 quarters at 42s [illegible] the corresponding week of last year."

Portland Produce Market.

No change in flour. Some very large sales are reported this week but the market is still overstocked. Standard brands are low and find ready sale. Owing to recent heavy rains in California prices of oats have declined. The market is still very weak. Shippers are holding off expecting lower prices, though the general impression is that they will rule high in the spring. Barley continues scarce. There are no changes in quotations. There is little or no first class timothy hay in the market and nothing but wild and bottom hay which is a drug. Mill feed is decidedly weaker. Bran has declined and is weak at present prices. There is considerable inquiry for shorts and middlings, but not much for chopped feed. Cured meats are weakening all round. Country hams have declined. Lard also has declined. California keg lard hurts the sale of first class Oregon lard. Dried apples are very dull sale, and prices are weak. The same may be said of dried plums. Favorable advices from San Francisco make hop growers confident of high prices in the spring. Green hides have declined half a cent. First class dry hides are in good demand. Fancy fresh roll butter from California is arriving by every steamer and prices are weakening. No change in onions. Eggs are a drug in the market at 18c. Receipts have been enormous, which has caused the decline, and as there is no inducement to ship to California, still lower prices may be expected. Cheese is unchanged. Choice red apples are in demand and first class lots could be sold above quotations. Pears are almost out of market. It seems that chickens are in sympathy with eggs. Receipts have been extremely large and prices have lowered consequently. Heavy receipts here and in California have caused potatoes to drop, and if they come in as freely this week as during the week just passed, we may look for a further decline. Choice white varieties are in good demand for seed—Burbank seedlings particularly. There is considerable inquiry for shingles. Following are quotations:

King of the Blood

Is not a "cure-all;" it is a blood-purifier and tonic. Impurity of blood poisons the system, deranges the circulation, and thus induces many disorders, known by different names to distinguish them according to effects, but being really branches or phases of that great generic disorder, Impurity of Blood. Such are Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Constipation, Nervous Disorders, Headache, Backache, General Weakness, Heart Disease, Dropsy, Kidney Disease, Piles, Rheumatism, Catarrh, Scrofula, Skin Disorders, Pimples, Ulcers, Swellings, &c., &c. King of the Blood prevents and cures these by attacking the cause, Impurity of the Blood. Chemists and physicians agree in calling it "the most genuine and efficient preparation for the purpose." Sold by Druggists, $1 per bottle. See testimonials, directions, &c., in pamphlet, "Treatise on Diseases of the Blood," wrapped around each bottle.

such as SPERMATORRHŒA, or SEMINAL WEAKNESS, or LOSS OF PERFECT VITALITY. Nearly two-thirds of all the Chronic Diseases spring, either directly or indirectly, from some derangement of the sexual system, and yet this subject is neglected by the majority of the Medical Profession.

It is now that persons who are unfortunate enough to be afflicted by any form of sexual disease have a delicacy in calling upon the proper physician in time, from a sense of modesty and sometimes from ignorance and permit these diseases to exist until their constitutions become corrupted, their organizations broken down and the hope of future happiness blighted, until death becomes a welcome messenger to carry them out of their miserable existence.

Everything strictly confidential under all circumstances.

The Daily Oregonian.

FRIDAY MORNING, JAN. 27, 1882.

THE NORTHWEST.

Eastern Oregon.

The number of sheep and horses has greatly increased in Union county during the last two years while cattle have decreased slightly.

There is a good deal of desirable land in the Cold Spring country awaiting settlement. The proximity to the Columbia river more than compensates for the slight difference in the soil of that region and of that which surrounds Weston. The season just closed has proved that in the production of cereals the gentle slopes of Vansycle, Juniper and Cold Spring have few equals. Those intending to "take up ranches" should not fail to visit that section of that immense county.

Southern Oregon.

L. C. Coleman, of Jacksonville, has sent to Germany for a quantity of the seeds of the plant known there as "reps" for J. N. T. Miller, who intends experimenting with it. The plant, which much resembles mustard, is cultivated for the seed, from which a valuable oil is pressed. The oil is largely used in cooking and for lubricating, and many other purposes, and its manufacture is very lucrative. Mr. Coleman thinks the climate and the soil of Southern Oregon well adapted to the successful cultivation of the plant.

Jacksonville Sentinel: Last week Harrison Kelley, the purchaser of the Coyote creek mining claims, so long in litigation, at sheriff's sale, demanded possession from Wm. Ruble, who was working them. On Ruble's refusal Kelley obtained an order from Judge Hanna directing Ruble to stay waste and discontinue working the claims. The order was served by the deputy sheriff, and Kelley then took possession, and, at last advices, is holding it. The title to this property has been in litigation for over four years, Ruble having been put in possession at the end of a suit against him by the Coyote creek G. & S. mining company. Kelley, the vendor, then commenced suit against Ruble and his associates, to enforce a vendor's lein, and at the last term of court held in this county a decision was given for him, execution issued and the property was sold by the sheriff on the 2d day of January, Kelley being the purchaser at $15,000. Mr. Kelley has a force of nine men and will endeavor to extract a little gold dust to reimburse him for his legal expenditures.

Washington Territory.

The total assessment of Walla Walla county for 1881 was $4,369,780. On this a total tax of $66,379 48 was levied. Up to date over $28,000 of the taxes due have been paid.

While there were mortgages received at the rate of one for every day in the year in Columbia county there were 155 real and 83 chattel mortgages satisfied, at least double the number satisfied in any preceding year.

The La Conner money order office was established August 16th last, and since that has done quite a rushing business. In four and a half months to December 31st that office issued orders amounting in the aggregate to the sum of $7859 74. This amount was issued in 350 orders

Articles of incorporation of the Seattle, Puget Sound and Gray's Harbor Railroad Company have been filed at Seattle. Incorporators and directors, Wm. A. Newell, Wm. Peel, J. R. Lewis, Richard Osborn, Geo. D. Hill, John M. Kolloch and John L. Prime; office and principal place of business, Seattle; object, to build, equip, run and maintain a railroad from Seattle to Gray's harbor, and to own and operate steamers and other vessels in connection with said road; capital stock, $2,000,000, divided into 40,000 shares at $50 each; duration of corporation, fifty years.

The new county of Garfield is officered by seven republicans and four democrats. Among the latter is the sheriff.

There were 2004 money orders issued, and 722 paid at the Vancouver postoffice in 1881. The first represented a value of $31,153 79; the last $1700 41.

The Coulter camp on Vancouver lake has taken a fresh start since New Years, and is now putting in about 1,300 feet of piling timber every day. The camp and the roads are now in order for pushing the work right along.

Idaho.

W. J. McConnell & Co., of Moscow, have commenced contracting for next year's flax crop.

Wesley Mulkey says he will furnish the building and the power for a linseed oil mill at Lewiston, provided other parties will furnish the necessary machinery and other fixings.

Stock running at large south of Lewiston have so far done quite well this winter, but in some places the grass is becoming short in consequence of being closely fed by Indian horses belonging on the reservation.

A letter from Capt. Guyer, superintendent of the Custer mill, under date of January 1st, says: "We have just moulded our last bar for 1881, which foots up $1,002,183 18 taken out since February 1, 1881, one even month's run. The mill is in splendid condition."

Negotiations have just been completed at Salt Lake for the consolidation of the Blackfoot and Bonanza stage line with the leading lines of the territory, of which Hon. John Hailey is superintendent. This brings all of the through, first-class lines of Idaho under one management.

MEXICO.

Progress of the Sonora Road.

GUAYMAS, Jan. 19.—The Sonora railroad is completed to beyond Estrella station, 21½ miles from Hermosillo. Stages will hereafter travel from Tucson to Hermosillo and connect at this point. Track-laying is being pushed forward at the rate of 1½ miles a day. The Corea, with three locomotives and 25 platform cars, has arrived, and no delay in sending material forward will be made.

After Apaches.

Authentic rumors are in town of an engagement of the state troops with the Apaches who raided Lompozo, resulting in the killing of 20 persons. The troops are in hot pursuit.

Corvette Arrived.

The Mexican corvette Guards has arrived with 50 troops, and will sail for Feburon island to conquer rebel Indians there.

Shipping Notes.

The Newbern arrived on Sunday last with a full freight, and left Monday evening with $60,000 in treasure. D. B. Robinson and family, M. Aleiza, Messrs. Mailer, Bickertson and Graves came [illegible] her and also six head of horned stock.

Scandinavian Laborers.

[New York Tribune.]

Mr. Villard makes a wise move in arranging to bring over from the Scandinavian countries a large body of laborers to work on the Northern Pacific railroad. After helping to finish the road, these men will add to its traffic by settling along the line and becoming stable and prosperous citizens. We get no better class of immigrants than the Scandinavians, and they show a marked preference for the new regions of the northwest, where the cold winters remind them of their old homes.

"I have divided my subject," began the parson, "into two heads." "Two heads with but a single thought," whispered Fogg to Mrs. F., and then he closed his eyes for his usual nap.

THURSDAY EVENING, Jan. 26.

The local wheat market has advanced slightly during the past week, and to-day may be quoted at $1 60 per cental. The advance is due to an improvement on the other side, and would be greater if ships had not been able to take the lion's share of the improvement in Europe. The large amount of eastern Oregon and Washington wheat ready for shipment has caused active bidding for ships, hence the advance in freights. By the close of the present week about all of the surplus from east of the mountains will have been shipped, except the stock held by flouring mills, and about seven thousand tons on the Snake river, which must come down slowly.

Receipts of grain from the Willamette valley have been very small of late, the daily average for the past two weeks being not greater than twenty-five hundred sacks.

Charter rates have advanced temporarily from 2s 6d to 5s within the week, the least rate reported being 75s for a wooden vessel to a direct port. The amount of tonnage on passage and to arrive is supposed to be ample to remove the surplus, and so soon as the eastern grain is off from hands, tonnage rates will probably decline again.

Potatoes, for which there was such extraordinary demand last week, are off for the present, owing to very heavy receipts.

THE ENGLISH MARKET.

The Mark Lane Express of Saturday last, reviewing the English grain markets for the previous week says: "The young plant is strong and healthy. Farmers' deliveries are generally full conditions. There was moderate inquiry for sound samples. Others were neglected. Foreign, dull supply, especially American. Scarcity of American winter and spring red wheats seems likely, but their equivalent is handy. Off coast markets are inanimate, closing a little better. Seven cargoes arrived and four were sold. The floating bulk has slightly decreased. For flour there was a steady demand at firm values; supply moderate. Lower grades fell slightly on Monday. In foreign there was small spot supply at unchanged rates. A large increase of floating supply from America seems to point to a glut in the market similar to that of 1881, than which a greater disaster could scarcely befall trade. Barley, both native and foreign, is unchanged. Oats, unchanged. Foreign dull, declined 6d. Maize, slow, but values a fraction higher. Sales of English wheat for the week amounted to 50,012 quarters at 46s 10d per quarter, against 56,933 quarters at 42s 11d in the corresponding week of last year."

Portland Produce Market.

No change in flour. Some very large sales are reported this week but the market is still overstocked. Standard brands are low and find ready sale. Owing to recent heavy rains in California prices of oats have declined. The market is still very weak. Shippers are holding off expecting lower prices, though the general impression is that they will rule high in the spring. Barley continues scarce. There are no changes in quotations. There is little or no first class timothy hay in the market and nothing but wild and bottom hay which is a drag. Mill feed is decidedly weaker. Bran has declined and is weak at present prices. There is considerable inquiry for shorts and middlings, but not much for chopped feed. Cured meats are weakening all round. Country hams have declined. Lard also has declined. California keg lard hurts the sale of first class Oregon lard. Dried apples are very dull sale, and prices are weak. The same may be said of dried plums. Favorable advices from San Francisco make hop growers confident of high prices in the spring. Green hides have declined half a cent. First class dry hides are in good demand. Fancy fresh roll butter from California is arriving by every steamer and prices are weakening. No change in onions. Eggs are a drug in the market at 18c. Receipts have been enormous, which has caused the decline, and as there is no inducement to ship to California, still lower prices may be expected. Cheese is unchanged. Choice red apples are in demand and first class lots could be sold above quotations. Pears are almost out of market. It seems that chickens are in sympathy with eggs. Receipts have been extremely large and prices have lowered consequently. Heavy receipts here and in California have caused potatoes to drop, and if they come in as freely this week as during the week just passed, we may look for a further decline. Choice white varieties are in good demand for seed—Burbank seedlings particularly. There is considerable inquiry for shingles. Following are quotations:

King of the Blood

Is not a "cure all." It is a blood-purifier and tonic. I know that persons who are unfortunate enough to be afflicted by any form of sexual disease have a delicacy in calling upon the proper physician in time, from a sense of modesty and sometimes from ignorance and permit those diseases to exist until their constitutions become corrupted, their organizations broken down and the hope of future happiness blighted, until death becomes a welcome messenger to carry them out of their miserable existence.
